General Disclosure

BGCU's listed graduate programs are Christian religious-vocation programs. They are not represented as programs designed to qualify a graduate for initial Florida licensure in a regulated occupation or profession unless a specific program disclosure expressly states otherwise.

Program-Specific Caution

- Education and educational-sciences degrees do not, by themselves, constitute Florida teacher certification, school administrator certification, counseling licensure, psychology licensure, or other professional licensure.
- Administration degrees do not, by themselves, confer a regulated professional license.
- Theology degrees are intended for Christian vocation, ministry, scholarship, and faith-related service and do not confer governmental ministerial licensure.
- Educational technology and innovation degrees do not, by themselves, confer teacher certification or another regulated professional license.

Student Responsibility

Before enrollment, each student is responsible for determining whether the program satisfies the requirements of any employer, licensing board, government agency, credential evaluator, university, or other third party in the jurisdiction where the student intends to use the credential.
